

On teaching history

The most important history that a child can learn is the history of her family and of the place where she lives.